ANNUAL REPORT 2007

Gender, Transformation & Empowerment

UWONET - WHO WE ARE

Uganda Women's Network is an advocacy and lobbying coalition of national women NGO's and individuals operating in Uganda. It is committed to the transforming unequal gender relations in society and promoting networking among women and other development partners based on mutual trust and respect for one another.

Vision

UWONET vision is to have a peaceful Uganda free of wars, gender violence and all forms of discrimination against women, uphold human rights and the principles of gender equity and equality; hence fostering equal opportunities and effective participation at all levels, while recognizing women's contributions.

Mission

To promote and enhance networking, collective visioning and action within the membership and with different actors working towards development and transformation of unequal gender relations in the Ugandan society.

Beliefs and Values

Women are the center of UWONET focus and in order to improve their status and attain gender equity and equality, there is need for collective voice to challenge the status quo. UWONET believes that the existing gender inequality and poverty impacts more on women than men.

MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIRPERSON

For UWONET, 2007 was a busy and hectic year with never a dull moment. It was a year that was filled with very many exciting positive events and many challenging ones. On the positive side the network intensified its collaboration with the Government of Uganda, development partners, donors and other strategic allies, in activities, ranging from influencing policies and laws to actively participating in the peace negotiations, between the Government and the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA) in Juba, Southern Sudan.

Our work across Uganda's borders ensured the inclusion of women's priority concerns in the on-going peace building process and negotiations. With the support from the United Nations Development Fund for Women (UNIFEM) the network played a crucial role of coordinating the Women's Peace

Coalition, which received an observer status at the peace negotiations.

Much as we take pride in how far we have come, we also acknowledge that these are just the first steps of a much longer journey. Despite the resounding victories, UWONET continues to grapple with numerous challenges especially the slow pace of legal reforms aimed at promoting women's rights.

The enactment of the Domestic Relations Bill (DRB), the Sex Offences Bill, the Domestic Violence Bill remains on the shelf of Government. These laws have to be a reality to Ugandan women. More than ever before, there is increased need to step up our advocacy to secure the government's commitment to the domestication of international conventions and protocols that guarantee women's rights in Uganda.

More so, the donor environment in which we are operating is rapidly changing. The new foreign aid modalities that are drastically affecting the funding of civil society organizations impact greatly on our performance. At the level of UWONET Governance and Management, new faces and blood came on Board in 2007, with a new Executive Committee and new Coordinator. I congratulate all those people that have tirelessly offered to serve UWONET and I wish those that have moved on the best of luck.

On behalf of the Executive Committee, I would like to thank all the people and organizations that have supported UWONET to achieve its objectives. Together with the Secretariat, we pledge to continue being reliable partners in advancing women's rights and gender justice.

We look forward to a more fruitful 2008.

COORDINATOR'S MESSAGE

I am delighted to present UWONET Annual Report 2007. The year was quite interesting because of the changes in the social political and economic environment in which we were operating.

The year saw a very special event for most Ugandans, CHOGM, the Queen of England's second visit to Uganda. The Head of commonwealth was coming for the second time having been here in the late fifties when Uganda was still a British protectorate but this time she was coming to an independent Uganda. This event was characterized by a lot of polishing up of virtually everything the queen would touch including makeup for roads in and around Kampala. This excitement in one way or another took a lot of time of many stakeholders, members and allies but also brought the network to broader lime light.

At the people's space, the Network held a dialogue on the Family law. The activity attracted many dignitaries including the State Minister for Constitutional Affairs Hon. Fred Ruhindi from whose affirmation the new wave of gender responsive policies is being brought to the legislature.

In all situations UWONET lobbied her way to achieve many of the achievements. One core strategy which was largely employed was coalition building.

Through coalitions success was registered in the area of women and peace building, where the UWCP achieved a notable position of "observer" at the peace negotiation table in Juba.

A further step was taken in the fight against Violence against women; UWONET contributed money for transporting the body of a victim of domestic violence and also contributed fees and relocated her children to safer homes and schools.

The Women Wont Wait campaign (WWWC) left no stone un turned in as far as campaigning for engendering policies, community mobilization and advocacy for new technologies in the fight against HIV/AIDS is concerned.

Achievements are quite many but so were the challenges but to us, It was learning ground for the Women of Uganda to actively engage for greater gender Transformation and Empowerment.

Programme 1: POLICY ADVOCACY

Achievements are quite many but so were the challenges but to us, It was learning ground for the Women of Uganda to actively engage for greater gender Transformation and Empowerment.

Policy Advocacy program is UWONET's core program and forms one of the key functions for which the network was created. Through this program, UWONET tries to make policy and decision making space more democratic by highlighting and championing the voices and concerns of women. Targeting is both at national and district levels where policy and decision makers and leaders of governance in this country are located. With support from donors and through coalitions UWONET makes women the key constituency in the formulation and implementation of laws, policies, programmes and practices geared towards the improvement of the status of society and of women in particular. The main purpose of this program is to engender laws, policies, programmes, structures and processes in Uganda with an aim of attaining gender equity and equality.

In 2007, UWONET Engaged with different actors in different structures, systems and processes of policy formulation, law making and program formulation and implementation to ensure their gender responsiveness. Emphasis was put on building gender consciousness, gender analysis and mainstreaming in almost all the activities that were implemented throughout the year.

HEALTH RIGHTS ADVOCACY

HIV/AIDS and Gender based Violence

HIV/AIDS global health crisis, the pandemic continues to take its toll on Ugandan society and remains a key cause of women and children's vulnerability. Violence against women is also rampant in Uganda and is often a cause and consequence of HIV/AIDS. Research shows that violence dramatically increases women and girls vulnerability to HIV/AIDS because violence makes life difficult or even impossible for women to use any protective methods such as condoms, or even to abstain from sex, or get their partners to practice healthy methods.

In many cases reported, violence has been found out to be one of the major outcomes and causes of women's lack of access to HIV prevention, care and treatment.

Gender Based Violence (GBV) is a wide spread international public health and human rights issue. Uganda lacks adequate, appropriate and comprehensive prevention and response strategies such as laws and policies. The existing laws are hardly enforced and patriarchy / culture override people's choices. Meanwhile women continue to be battered, discriminated, suffer sexual violence and even die. According to Uganda demographic household survey (UDHS) 2006, high rates of violence makes women more vulnerable. Every woman is a potential victim of sexual violence or rape. Uganda Bureau of Statistics 2006 indicates that one in four women (24%) reported that their first sexual intercourse was forced.

In March 2007, UWONET with support from Action Aid Uganda launched a battle against the intersect of HIV and GBV called "WOMEN WON'T WAIT" CAMPAIGN.

During the launch, the Minister of State for Primary Health Care Hon. Otala expressed the MoH commitment to pass the HIV/AIDS policy that provides for equal access to care and support, treatment and to ending acts of violence against women.

Similar campaign has since started in several districts including Arua, Lira, Katawki, Kumi, Kitgum, Soroti, Tororo, and Mubende and of recent some districts from Western Uganda.

HIV/AIDS Vaccine trials

UWONET engaged in a lot of media campaigns with a view to encourage women to take part in the HIV/Aids vaccine trials. Out of the many, only 20 women and 20 men enrolled in the vaccine trials. In addition, several training workshops to train volunteers and Gender Advisory Committee (GAC) on gender vaccine trial manual were done.

16 days of Activism

This years 16 days of activism saw Ugandan News hit by pictures of a mother of five who was brutally murdered by her husband in Kinawatakka, Mbuya a Kampala suburb. News had it that Ampeire whose husband hacked off her head in presence of their 5 young children, accused her of denying him sex. It was reported that the husband an Ex- soldier was HIV positive while his wife (MAURINE) was negative.

The newspaper pictures of late Maureen Ampeire were so shocking with her head cut off and one of her sons, a 12 year old trying to fix the head back in its original place.

UWONET quickly responded by visiting the scene of the crime, talking to the local leadership, the police/ criminal investigation unit and the family & child protection unit.

A press conference in condemnation of Violence against Women (VAW) was also held.

A huge demonstration match was quickly organized with the Woman Member of Parliament for Kampala District, Hon. Nabbila Sempala as the chief demonstrator, the marchers stormed Kinawatakka chanting slogans to end violence against women, demanding government to enact laws to protect women.

Many stakeholders including Uganda Police officials represented by the Child protection Unit, the Officer in charge of the Police post in Kinawatakawowed to end impunity and gender based violence in Uganda.

Interface with the Legislature

Working with Women Members of Parliament through their association UWOPA is one of the key strategies UWONET employs in advocacy work. In order to achieve this, a number of activities were done for and with women MPs as indicated

- Round table meetings and dialogues and Think tank
- Think Tank meetings
- Informal and formal gatherings/ meetings.

This year's capacity building program for women MPs covered GBV and HIV/ AIDS.

This was a strategic meeting because the women MPs pledged to support enactment of the many contentious gender issues that have been pending in parliament such as the Sexual offenses Bill, Domestic Violence bill and the HIV/Aids Bill.

The Domestic Relations Bill Advocacy

For many years, Ugandan women have been concerned about absence of a law that protects families. Pushing for the enactment of Domestic Relations Bill has indeed been central for many women's organizations chaired by UWONET. In 2005, just as the bill was about to be concluded in parliament, a number of issues came up and it has since been shelved. UWONET has since engaged in a number of activities in preparation for its next coming tabling.

- Breaking the bill in many separate clauses and renaming it the Family law.
- A pre-visit to some districts on the DRB and the sexual offences Bills campaign was done
- Media campaigns on local radios and T.V to

The Chairperson UWOPA Hon. Winnie Matsiko addressing women in civil society at one such gathering in 2007 sensitize and inform the masses on the importance of the DRB

- Workshops, meetings and seminars with Uganda Women Parliamentary Association (UWOPA)
- Consultations with various key stakeholders e.g. Uganda Law Reform Commission, and the Ministry of Justice and constitutional affairs
- Development of DRB work plan and this was to pave way for the development of a comprehensive and fair law (DRB) to be re-tabled in the 8th parliament.
- Research on the church canon laws and the DRB in the Anglican, Orthodox and Catholic Church
- Research on Islamic marriage and divorce in Uganda according to the Koran

The prospects of peace in the Northern Uganda

Through building coalitions and coordinating the activities of the Uganda Women's Coalition for Peace (UWPC), UWONET was able to touch the lives of many women from across the region in northern Uganda.

A number of consultative meetings on agenda 2 and 3 were done in Acholi Lango, West Nile and Teso Regions. At national level consultations took place both with Government and the LRA. The centre of focus for the negotiations was to include women's concerns in the peace process by including and involving women in the negotiations.

Sharing moments of joy in the face of conflict. Women from northern Uganda happy about their achievements during one of the consultative meetings held in Gulu: photo by UWONET Info. Dept

The following were the very crucial achievements

- A women's position paper on Justice Accountability and reconciliation was developed and handed to both government and the LRA.
- A reflective meeting was held where a clear strategy for creating synergies between different efforts of women to influence the Juba peace process was drawn.
- Both the Uganda government side and LRA delegation agreed to add women on their teams.
- Under the theme, "Women need peace and peace needs women", UWONET spearheaded the celebrations to mark the United Nations Security resolution 1325. This resolution is the first of its kind having been passed on 31st October 2000 specifically to address the impact of war on women and recognize women's contributions to conflict resolution and sustainable peace.
- UWONET hosted the UNDP country representative Mr. Theophane Nikyema who pledged his commitment to including gender concerns in the peace process.
- Capacity building and skills empowerment for members of the Uganda Women's Coalition for peace was done with support from Inclusive Security

A number of consultative meetings were held to develop women's position on the peace and resettlement plans.

Several negotiations were held with different high level personalities with a view to lobby them to include women's concerns in the Juba peace talks e.g. Ms Rachael Mayanja, the UN assistant General on Gender and H.E. Joachim Chissano- the UN Envoy to the peace talks Juba . Both them pledged lobby for the inclusion of the Uganda women concerns at the United Nations forum on the peace process and enabled the quasi -legal status to the women in the peace talks in Juba.

Women's protocol on ACPHR

Several activities were done to push for the ratification of the protocol. Among the many, was;

- Workshop for Women Members of Parliament and CSOs.
- Meetings with key Ministry officials
- Formulation of an advocacy task force chaired by UWONET.
- Production and dissemination of advocacy tools/materials
- Documentation of Women's experiences in Multi party political environment in Uganda

CEDAW TRACKING

The Convention on the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW) provides that states, parties submit to the secretary general a report on their country implementation achievements in legislative, judicial, administrative and other spheres that were adopted to implement the convention within a year after its entry into force and then at least every four years thereafter or whenever the committee on CEDAW so requests a state to do so.

The convention is a powerful instrument for articulating advocacy and monitoring of women's rights and makes provision for the participation of NGOs in tracking government's progress in their respective countries.

UWONET found this as a very important entry point in terms of evaluation government's commitment to promoting women's rights and ensuring that the convention is truly viewed as an empowerment instrument for women. Therefore straight away embarked on CEDAW tracking process that has yielded two very important aspects i.e the Annual Monitoring Tool kit and the CEDAW CSO Shadow Report 2008"

Programme 2: NETWORKING

Throughout 2007, UWONET strategically established linkages with various networks and stakeholders and registered the following achievements in its networking programme:

and other women in the wider community of CSOs.

It is also intended to stimulate and strengthen networking at a time when there is dire need for collective voicing, coalition building and Launching the Networking policy; Hon Rukia Nakadama; The State Minister for Gender officiated the Launch; photo by UWONET information Dept.

The Networking Policy

UWONET recognizes that at the core of a collective voice are relationships among members working together and these relationships must be nurtured and helped to flourish. The development and implementation of the Networking Policy was one way of strengthening these linkages. In view, that the Network has existed for over ten years without a networking policy, this policy has been developed to consolidate the gains made and build concrete networking relationships with members partnering for more impact in situations that require big numbers.

Advocacy Skills Training for UWONET Members

Advocacy skill training for UWONET members was undertaken under the theme: 'Gender Capital Management for Effective Advocacy.' Members were trained on creating and sustaining strategic linkages with grassroots and men for popular support of advocacy for women's rights and empowerment.

The other very important achievements were;

- made through celebration of mothers day highlighting the need for government to improve maternal health, Gender Based Violence
- young leaders training programs
- Press brief on the Pre-CHOGM disability conference

Growing the Women's Movement in Uganda

The women's movement in Uganda today is threatened by a burn-out syndrome and there seems to be a generational gap. As experienced senior women activists retire, or are overtaken by the changing political environment, there would have been more vibrant and energetic younger women are not readily coming up to take up the challenge.

This has been attributed largely to lack of conceptualization of the women's struggle by the young women caused by not sharing experiences and really putting effort to pass the knowledge, skills and passion to advocate for women's issues by younger women.

UWONET therefore came up with a mentoring program, where women and men of potential, skills and passion are encouraged and facilitated to pass it on to others through close association and interaction.

A Mentoring Guide was developed to facilitate the process of mentoring young people into civic and political leadership.

In this program, a number of Intergenerational Dialogues to enthuse young women into leadership were held; an Intergenerational Dialogue for fresh men and women of 2007 at Makerere University, a dialogue with women councilors in the district of Kiboga and another with survivors of sexual abuse in the slums of Kampala.

Media advocacy

During the year, a number of activities geared towards raising public awareness on key issues that were in the environment at that time were hosted through mass media advocacy program.

The purpose of this particular program was to keep women's concerns top on the national agenda.

The following activities were held:-

- Condemnation of the brutal murder of Ampaire Morin who was murdered by husband in Kinawataka a Kampala suburb. Maureen was killed over sexual relations because her husband was HIV/positive while she was negative.
- Coordination and facilitation of CEDOVIP press brief on gender based violence
- FOWODE press briefs on the young leaders training programme DWNRO's press brief on the pre- CHOGM disability conference and ACFODE celebration of mother's day.
- Akina Mama wa Afrika fighting gender based violence

The activities were done through Live radio and television broadcasting

Meetings

Throughout the year, as part of ensuring effective Networking a number of meetings were held under the following sectors, meetings for Executive Directors, Directors and Chairpersons forum, General Assembly, Executive Committee, EC committees and weekly Staff meetings.

This was to facilitate the membership of UWONET to remain updated about business of the Network as well as strategize on a number of issues. This also facilitated policy making organs of the network to meet and make strategic decisions and policies.

Coalition Building

Advocacy work requires big, big numbers, big ideas, big connections and linkages and big influential personal to be able to be heard. A number of coalitions were hosted in 2007 as follows.

UWONET continued to host the Uganda Women's Coalition for Peace and to convene meetings for members to discuss women's participation in the peace negotiation process. During the year, the coalition actively engaged in the engendering the agendas of the peace process, held consultations with grass root women on accountability, reconciliation.

The other important areas where UWONET worked through were;

- The Uganda Governance Monitoring Program (UGMP)
- Civil Society Capacity Building Program Steering Committee (CSCBP).
- The Women Won't Wait Campaign
- The Gender, Growth Assessment Coalition (GGA)
- the DRB Coalition.

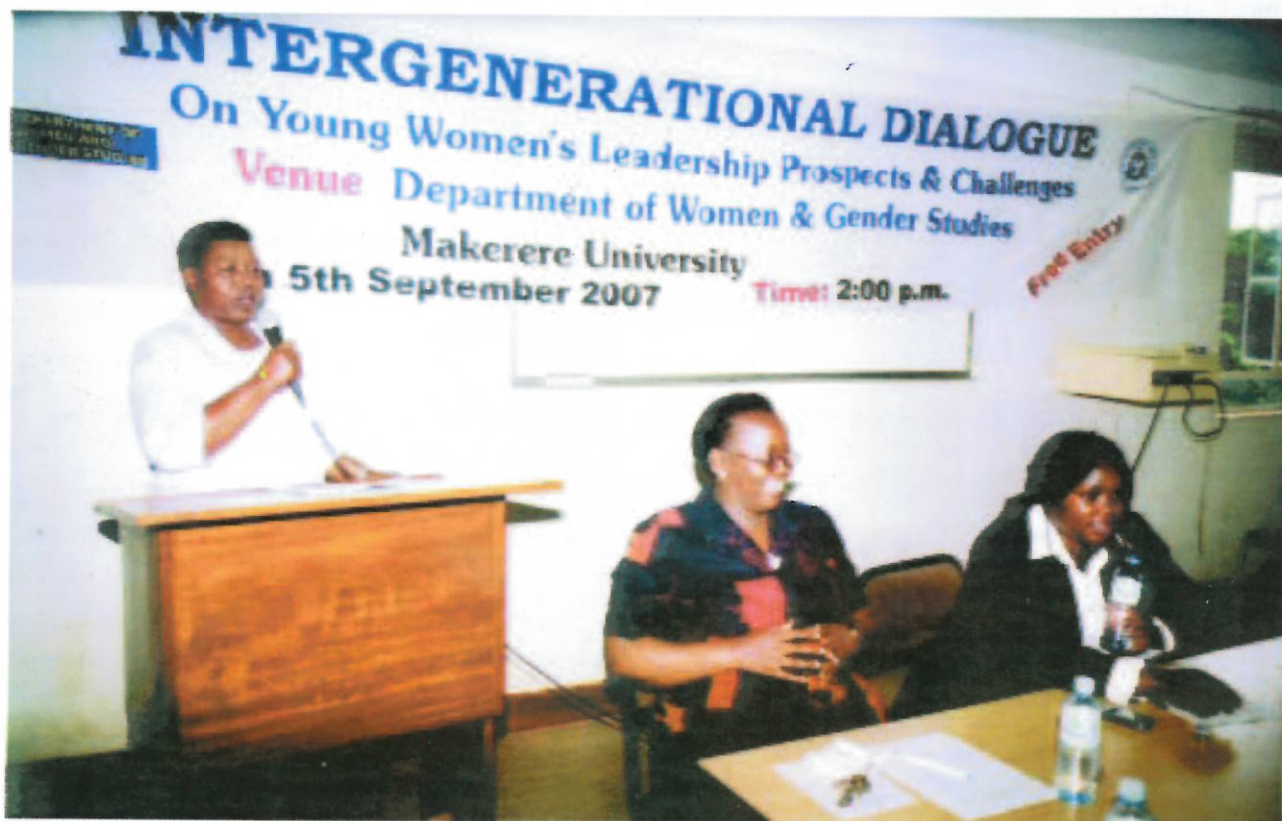

UWONET engaged in a number of other activities with her membership, allies, other partners.

KIC project

"Knowledge is power" so the saying goes-but this knowledge can only be useful when shared out and utilized. In 2007, UWONET with the kind support of Oxfam/Novib initiated a Knowledge Infrastructure with and between Counterparts (KIC) Project for sharing knowledge and experiences between and among civil society organizations. The main objective of this project is to increase effectiveness of CSOs work towards gender transformation and empowerment.

In this programme 7 thematic forums and 6 exchange visits were held. The following members participated in the project.

- Department of Women Gender Studies
- Slum Aid Project
- Center for Domestic Violence Prevention
- Forum for Women in Democracy
- Disabled Women's Network and Resource Organization
- the Association of Women Lawyers in Uganda (FIDA-U) and its partners-Environmental (EA)
- Development Network of Indigenous Voluntary Associations (DENIVA)
- Uganda National NGO Forum
- Akina Mama wa Afrika
- Uganda Land Alliance.

At Makerere University, Department of Gender Studies, UWONET facilitated Intergenerational dialogue.

International and Regional Networking

UWONET staff continued to participate in trainings and workshops among which were:

1. Sexual and reproductive health Rights in Uganda

The project enabled participants to reflect on their practical experiences as well as share them and learn from each other through forums for information sharing and cross-institutional learning so as to strengthen each other and contribute to the achievement of the various goals and aims of the participants.

Through this project UWONET envisages to link various counterparts in Uganda and in the region; learn and share experiences on women's rights policy development, advocacy, implementation and monitoring.

For the full report of the project and continued sharing, please visit;

organized by FEMNET in Kenya Nairobi

2. African Summit on Raising voices for the economic empowerment of women in Africa held in Cape Town South Africa. The young generation was mentored in economically empowering the communities in Africa.
3. Women and Peace Building in Conflict situation, Inclusive Security.
4. International networking on the Peace process in the region-Southern Sudan. UWONET attended the Gender Justice workshop under the invitation of UNIFEM and the Government of Southern Sudan This meeting enabled the Uganda women's Network to lobby the Government of Southern Sudan stakeholders/ instructions to priorities the regional support for peace.

5. Somalia and Uganda Symposium on the post reconstruction programme.
6. Exchange visit for organisations working in East African and Horn of Africa to Bangladesh on getting practical skills to address the intersect between HIV/AIDS and gender based violence under the We can Campaign

Programme 3: INFORMATION MANAGEMENT

The UWONET web portal is the most notable achievement in this area of information management. The portal houses views and discussion on women issues all over Uganda, the region and in the whole world. The portal houses discussion boards, chat rooms and other collaboration tools needed to exchange views and strategies on issues affecting women in general.

UWONET Website

Throughout the year, the website was hosted. This included constant update with new information.

Increased awareness and sustained momentum of the Network increased in 2007. The purpose was to continue working towards raising community awareness and advocacy for women's rights.

GOVERNANCE

Governance is a double edged sword. Depending on which side of the sword one approaches, it can either develop or kill an organization. At UWONET 2007 was a year of bliss. A new set of leaders came on board both at board and secretariat level. The team has been very instrumental throughout the year.
